

This is the week everything is due. I was able to fully implement everything related to the app's backend and the server integrating mongodb. There was a bump in progress due to another team member not being able to implement account authentication which caused other features such as voting to not be fully implemented. I had to help and implement that feature so that everything can be done. We weren't able to make it in time but everything that we originally wanted to add was added to the app, and I like how it looks. If I had more time I would have added a favorites list and possibly a comment section. Prior to this week, the only things left were account auth and the voting system so it worked out mostly well.